

Disease of Corruption makes managing a health care practice impossible

Corruption is nothing but the abuse of public office for a private gain. It is a cancer that has been spreading all over the world and it has impacted the medical field as well. It is a well nourished tree with its roots firmly ~~at~~ grown into the soil.

Corruption has impacted human life in many ways especially through the medical field. Corruption in medicine gambles with the lives of not just the victims but also many more innocents. It plays a very risky bet which usually lost by the latter.

The connection of a doctor to a patient is one of the purest bond on earth and corruption has been trying to disrupt it. It prevents the patients from getting the due and needy care.

It might come in many forms like building stake rejection, blackmailing of workers in the health care system, unjust behaviour towards employees, illegal payments, etc.

Just the health care management system for the rich corruption rates ~~but~~ the lives of doctors are at stake too. Corruption is not only at in multiple